

Whitney Duong started her County of Los Angeles career in 1999 and has since worked for five County departments. Her experience includes contracts and grants management, operations compliance, human resources, and budgeting. She found her fur-ever family at the Department of Animal Care and Control (DACC) in 2009—the Department where she has worked for the longest. At DACC, she has served as the Contract Cities Liaison/Contracts and Grants Division (CGD) manager.

As the CGD manager, Whitney has had exposure and experience with all operational and administrative fields, allowing her to understand the big picture. Most importantly, working for DACC for over 13 years has given her many opportunities to work alongside all levels of staff, from meeting passionate community volunteers, animal control officers, animal control managers, and executive leadership team. These experiences have opened her eyes and helped her to better understand our mission of protecting people and animals through compassionate care, community education, proactive intervention, and effective enforcement. She is honored to be part of the DACC family and appreciates the opportunity to pave the way for the next generation.

During her spare time, Whitney enjoys giving her 2.5 dogs (Hersey, Lucky, and Beignet (co-parenting) weekly home spa treatments, volunteering to cook for the homeless, traveling, dining out, reading, and watching YouTube.
